WANT NAMES OF
THOSE MAKING
SOUTHERN TRIP

First Gettysburg Caravan Into Shenandoah Valley Leaves On May 16th.

NOTIFY LOCAL
C. C. SECRETARY

How many battlefield guides and townspeople are going to make the "good-will" trip through the Shenandoah valley to Endless caverns May 16 and 17, the first journey, and on May 23 and 24, the second journey?

Directors of the Chamber of Commerce who have accepted the invitation of their southern friends are anxious to learn just who plans to make the journey.

Thirty battlefield guides are expected to make each trip, thirty on the first jaunt and thirty on the second, and the local Chamber is anxious to have the names of those who are going on the first tour.

All expenses, except transportation, are being borne by the southern hosts. The local delegation of sixty persons will make the trip in motor cars, comprising a caravan, instead of buses. This will also reduce the expenses of the transportation.

Traveling Expense Low

It was explained that if five persons went in one car the traveling expenses will not be more than $1.50 or $2 each. It may be less, one Chamber of Commerce director said, depending upon the amount of gasoline and oil which will be consumed on the trip.

This is the only expense incurred by those making the tours. Shenandoah Valley, Incorporated, is paying all other expenses, such as hotel expenses, entertaining and other miscellaneous items during the two days.

The first delegation will leave here early on the morning of May 16, remain over night in the south, and return to Gettysburg some time May 17.

The second delegation will leave on May 23 and return on May 24.

Notify C. C. Secretary

It is imperative, a Chamber spokesman said, that those who plan to make the trip on May 16 notify James B. Aumen, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, as soon as possible. The local Chamber is anxious to notify their southern hosts of the exact number of persons who will comprise the first caravan, not later than May 6.

Those who have automobiles also are urged to notify Mr. Aumen, so that arrangements can be made to place those without machines. If a party of five persons desires to make the trip in one machine and share the traveling expenses they may do so, but they must notify Secretary Aumen.

Banners On Cars

Each machine will be fitted with a large Gettysburg banner and the caravan will remain intact until it reaches its destination.

The invitation was extended to the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce through Major E. M. Brown, president an executive director of Endless and the Virginia caverns.

The Virginians are eager to further cement the close feeling of fellowship that exists between the southerners and Gettysburgians and to extend a welcome hand in a spirit of furthering tourist traffic through this section into the south and from the south into Gettysburg.

A two-day visit, it was explained, will do much to perfect a close bond between the two sections and thus stimulate an exchange of good fellowship.

The invitation is extended to all Gettysburgians, whether or not an individual is a member of the local Chamber of Commerce.

In Memory of the Resurrection

Influx of Visitors Here This Week Is Highest in Many Years

With the best Easter travel in several years, Gettysburgians are speculating as to whether it is a harbinger of one of the pre-depression touring seasons.

Opinion is general that the late Easter this year is one of the predominant factors. The holiday combines itself with the blossoms and other forms of spring beauty and with the spectacle of the cherry blossoms in Washington. Another factor is the ideal weather that has prevailed in the past several days after an extended rainy spell.

Those who keep in close touch with travel statistics do not look for a banner year but expect that the summer season will show some improvement over the past two years. The main reason for this, it is pointed out, is because of the absence of any national attraction such as the Century of Progress which attracted millions of visitors to Chicago during the last two summers.

The Chicago fair unquestionably distorted the travel business throughout the east. It effected Gettysburg particularly because there was not sufficient territory to the east to compensate for the volume of travel usually through here in the summer from the middle west.

Depressed Periods Over

Whether the dust storm and drought catastrophes in the west will effect travel from that section this summer remains to be seen. Undoubtedly, some claim, it will effect it.

There is unanimity of opinion, nevertheless, that the really depressed periods are over and that the trend from now on will be gradual improvement.

Gettysburg's accessibility which has always been a feature in its favor, will be an important factor in the future of the tourist trade here, one business man pointed out. Neighboring communities and competing localities are again stepping to the fore with aggressive advertising campaigns to attract tourist trade. Washington, for instance, has recently set up a visitors and

Easter flinty, however, is expected to be seen aplenty at various colorful church ceremonies and although the forecast is a bit gloomy most local folk are of the opinion that the weather man is going to miss his "guess."

The warm, sunshiny days the latter part of this week encouraged local residents and there were many hasty preparations for the coming of Easter, the feast of the resurrection.

The weather man also forecasts colder weather for Easter Sunday, but even this has not dampened the Easter ardor in this community.

Old Continental Money Found in Wallet in Attic

In looking over some old things in the attic at his home in York Springs, Clarence Cline discovered some continental money in an ancient leather pocketbook. This had been the property of his step-father, the late Henry A. Meals.

The Meals family were residents of Huntington township for many years, and the old paper money had probably been saved by one of the men who was living during the American Revolutionary period or a little later. All of the bills bear dates prior to the Revolutionary war and were issued by the Province of Maryland.

The oldest one is for eight dollars, and bears the date of 1761; another one calls for one-nineteenth of a dollar, and is dated 1770; one was issued for two-thirds of a dollar, in 1773; one, dated with Roman numerals, MDCCCLXXIV, calls for three shillings. Others are dated 1774 and call for one-sixth of a dollar to two dollars apiece.

LOCAL SCOUTS
WILL PRESENT
DEMONSTRATION

To Show Progress Made in Various Activities During Recent Years.

WILL BE HELD IN HOTEL ANNEX

The largest and most pretentious demonstration ever presented in Gettysburg will be offered by the five local Boy Scout troops. In the Hotel Gettysburg annex, Saturday night, April 27, at 8 o'clock, Dr. W. E. Tilberg, scout executive for Adams county, announced today.

The demonstration will feature activity in which Boy Scouts interest themselves and will give the local public an opportunity to see at first hand the progress made during recent years by Gettysburg's scouts.

There will be no admission but a free will offering will be taken, all of which will be used to defray the expenses of the five Gettysburg scouts who will represent this community at the Boy Scout jamboree in Washington, D. C., August 21 to 30 inclusive.

In addition to a prepared program of demonstrations there will be a cake sale, a public auction of bird houses made by local scouts and other side issues.

Urges Large Turnout

Doctor Tilberg said he is anxious to have a large crowd of local residents witness the demonstration as a gesture of interest in scout work, a tribute to the boys and some financial response to assure the expenses of the five boys who will represent Gettysburg in the jamboree.

Scouts have been working for several weeks in an effort to raise sufficient funds for the Washington affair. They are collecting old newspapers, magazines, empty shaving and tooth paste tubes and other articles which are being sold to swell the jamboree fund.

Next Saturday's demonstration is expected to net the balance of the amount needed.

The following program has been prepared for the demonstration:

Buglers will introduce each number. Parade of troops and massing of colors and troop flags.

Twelve to fifteen patrol exhibits. First aid demonstration by Troops 75, 76, 77, 78 and 80.

Each troop will have one first-aid demonstration.

Flag Ceremony
Flag ceremony. How to handle and respect the colors, by a select group of scouts of York under the leadership of Commissioner Charles Weaver of York.

Fire by flint and steel contest. Each of the five troops will be represented.

Demonstration of rope spinning by "Montana" Ray Shaffer, a cowboy.

Candle ceremonial depicting the scout oath and law by Troop 76, of the Gettysburg Presbyterian church. Towerbuilding and signalling demonstration by Troops 75 and 80 of St. James and Christ Lutheran churches respectively.

Massing of scouts and flags. Pledge of allegiance. Taps.

He also suggested that sanitary laundry tubs be installed and that the kitchen and dining room be repapered. The general cleanliness of the jail was commented upon.

WILL FACE TWO
LIQUOR COUNTS

C. A. "Al" Fox, whose resignation as constable in the third ward was accepted by Judge Donald P. McPherson in court, Friday afternoon, was arrested this morning at 8 o'clock at his home on West street on two charges of alleged violation of the liquor laws.

Informations against Fox were laid before Justice of the Peace John C. Shearer by Officer George B. Aughinbaugh, who with Corporal A. B. Verbecken, served the warrants.

In one information, Fox is charged with "having conspired with Eva McCadden in the sale of liquor" while on the other count he is charged with "aiding and abetting Eva McCadden in the sale of liquor."

Escorted "Cousins"

According to Officer Aughinbaugh, the charges grew out of Fox's alleged connection with Mrs. Eva McCadden and her husband, Willis, when the McCaddens were said by the officer to be selling liquor at their home on Chambersburg street.

Fox is said by Officer Aughinbaugh to have taken several friends to the McCadden home where he vouched for them as "cousins from the country" so that they could purchase liquor.

FILES APPEAL FOR HAUPTMANN

Attorney for Condemned Man Says Case Will Be Taken To Supreme Court.

Blairtown, N. J., April 20 (AP)—Egbert Rosecrans, one of the counsel for Bruno Richard Hauptmann, announced today the Hauptmann case would be taken to the United States supreme court if necessary.

Rosecrans filed with the prosecution 143 assignments of error as the opening step in the appeal to the highest New Jersey court from the conviction, and death sentence of the Flemington trial courts.

Setting forth in blunt terms formal condemnation of the court, the prosecution, the presence of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh at the trial, the press and the "circus maximus" of the action in general, which ended with conviction and death sentence, Rosecrans listed under "group Q" reasons why the case should be admitted to the United States supreme court.

The lean, scholarly attorney, whose last eleven murder cases have resulted in spectacular acquittals and who undertook much of the legal work connected with the trial and the appeal, complained that the verdict was against the weight of evidence and he charged the court, presided over by the senior justice of the New Jersey supreme court, Thomas W. Trenchard, with "impairing a free and unbiased verdict."

"Group Q" sets forth reasons why the rights of the defendant were violated, Rosecrans said, under the constitution of the United States.

Hitler Rejects Council's Condemnation in Curt Note

(By The Associated Press)

A short, curt note to the powers of Europe flatly rejecting the League of Nations council's condemnation of German re-armament was Reichsfuhrer Hitler's birthday gift to himself and the world today.

First made public at home, the note was sent through German ambassadors and ministers to all the nations participating in the Geneva meeting. It characterized those deliberations as "a new discrimination" against the Reich.

The note reached London in the absence of government officials who were away on Easter holidays.

In Moscow the government newspaper Izvestia expressed strong approval of the league council's action and demanded the participation of Germany in European accords, not merely her sanction of such accords. The "greatest misfortune" awaits any aggressive act on the part of Germany, the paper said.

Paris disclosed that the Franco-Russian military accord was being held up because of new difficulties, reportedly concerned with Russia's reluctance to give up "automatic" provisions of military assistance. The strengthening and manning of France's "steel ring" along the border was nearing completion.

Rome officials disclosed what they called the "biggest annual recruiting of aviators ever held in the world" as applications poured into the air ministry for 1,300 pilots' posts and 4,750 specialists mechanics preliminary to a temporary recall to service next month of hundreds of reserve pilots.

King Carol of Rumania, in a speech from the throne to parliament expressed the hope that armament would be pushed forward. This was taken to indicate that the government will propose a considerable increase in equipment for the army.

Accuse Negro of Violating Code

Informations charging Guy Cross, colored, of Gettysburg, with driving an automobile without an operator's license and failing to stop when signalled by an officer were laid before Justice of the Peace John C. Shearer, Friday afternoon, by Officer C. M. Spence.

Another information was laid by Officer Spence against Mrs. John Hoffman, Iron Springs, for permitting Cross to operate her car.

August Called Most Auspicious Month for Births of Famous

Carlisle, Pa., April 20 (AP)—Dr. E. C. Herber, of Dickinson college, told the Pennsylvania Academy of Science Friday that a thorough study discloses that there are more prominent persons born in August than in any other month.

Seeking evidence of the relationship between the time of birth and prominence, Dr. Herber and a corps of students studied 40,000 names in "Who's Who" and American Man of Science.

They found, Dr. Herber said, that August produced more famous people than any other month, while May had the fewest. September and October were almost as "good" as August, and April closely rivaled May for the least.

Dr. Herber's staff studied the birth dates of 3,000,000 individuals, and found February leads in total births, with the fewest in December.

"But," he said, "no final decision can be made to the significance of one's birth-month and the degree of prominence one attains until more exhaustive study has been made."

Qualifications for science teachers in secondary schools would be based under recommendations advanced by Dr. John C. Johnson, of West Chester State Teachers' college. He suggested twenty-four semester hours—eight each in biology, chemistry and physics—be required of these teachers, and that those now employed be given five years to meet the requirements. Dr. Johnson was instructed to draft final recommendations for next year's session.

Dr. George N. C. Henchen, of the William Penn high school faculty, Harrisburg, told the academy his studies show that the present site of the state capital in Harrisburg once was three miles higher than it is now. He said it has been worn away by erosion.

GOES MAD AT MURDER TRIAL

Extra Deputies Guard Defendant Through Closing Stages.

Dixon, Ill., April 20 (AP)—Charles Skinner, poem-penning hermit of Amboy, elected to make a finish fight of his murder trial Friday after his chief counsel had gone suddenly berserk and had been taken to an insane asylum in manacles.

The 43-year-old poet is accused of slaying 17-year-old Olive Derwent in a fit of frustrated love.

As public interest hit a new peak, extra deputies were summoned to guard the defendant through the climatic stages of the trial.

Harold Nimz, young barrister whose mind apparently cracked under the strain of the proceedings, broke up the furnishings of his boarding house room last night, was adjudged insane at a hearing Friday and was taken to the East Moline state hospital in handcuffs shortly afterwards.

Witnesses Grilled

A colleague who stepped into the breach closely questioned a trio of prosecution witnesses—Dr. E. A. Sullivan, Mrs. Dorothy Camery, aunt of the comely victim, and Mrs. Earl Stout—but failed to shake their stories. The physician and the aunt had testified that the high school girl had named Skinner as her assailant when told she might succumb to her wounds.

The girl was fatally wounded last January 30 by a stealthy gunman who fired a fusillade of bullets at her and her escort, John Scott, as they sat in a parked car. Mrs. Stout related how Skinner had allegedly informed her that the "little white snowflake" of his verses was "rumming around" with Scott.

Young Nimz began acting strangely last night. He went about town telling people his client had been acquitted. Then he went on a rampage in his room. He was taken to jail.

FASCIST HEADS IN CONFERENCE

Austrian Prince Meets Premier Mussolini in "Cor-dial Colloquy."

Rome, April 20 (AP)—"A cordial colloquy of more than an hour" between Benito Mussolini and Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, Europe's chief exponent of fascism, Friday served to emphasize official Italy's growing sentiment for restoration of the Hapsburg dynasty in Austria.

Von Starhemberg, vice chancellor of Austria, leader of the 100,000-strong Fascist Heimwehr and staunch monarchist, talked to Il Duce, it was learned, about the Hapsburgs, Austria's rearmament and the forthcoming Danubian conference in Rome.

It is freely conceded here that Italian officialdom looks upon eventual restoration of the monarchy in Austria as the only means of saving off permanently Austria's union with Germany.

Immediate Action Unlikely Austrian circles said Thursday night, however, that Von Starhemberg's report on prospects for an immediate restoration was not entirely favorable.

Austria alone, without Hungary, would not be sufficient domain for the Hapsburgs, he was reported as saying, and the trend of recent Hungarian elections was deemed unfavorable to the monarchy.

Concerning Austria's rearmament, already decreed by the Schuschnigg government, Von Starhemberg was said to have told Mussolini his nation "wishes to go slow" in contrast with Germany's precipitate action. Austria's financial stringency dictates only moderate rearmament, he was reported to have said.

GREAT RICHES

by Mateel Howe Farnham

SYNOPSIS: The Great War served, at least, to postpone what seemed an inevitable break between James and Jane Stimson. It took James out of New Concord, Kas., and away from the law business that, his miserable home life was slowly destroying. James came back a major, was greeted at St. Louis by an apparently pleasant Jane—what he found that he didn't have anything, whatever he wanted to say to her. Now he is home, and has simply walked out on Jane after their first luncheon together.

Chapter 42

JAMES' WALK

James had left the Mansion with every intention of walking as fast as his legs would carry him the two miles that separated him from his waiting dinner, at Oak and North Fifth streets. He was late already. Jane would have a right to be sore as hell.

He came to the lane that dipped abruptly down to the River Road. Almost involuntarily his feet turned into it. He was a coward, a cur, a contemptible ass. But he had not, he could not find the courage to go back and face Jane.

He knew, nevertheless, that sooner or later he would go back. It was impossible, being what he was, just to walk out of her life and never see her again, as he desperately longed to do.

Well, this was his last day in uniform, the last hours he had left to feel himself a man and not just a husband. Wasn't he entitled to spend these hours to suit himself? The Northrups, mere and pere, were certain to put in an appearance that evening.

If he had to listen another half hour to more of Mr. Northrup's slobber there sure would be murder done. God! How he would enjoy squeezing that fat purple throat, grinding his hob-nailed heel on that blotched overfed face!

James ate his "welcome home" dinner out of a can beside a camp fire. It consisted of stew, baked potatoes, coffee and raw corn whiskey.

His host was an extremely dirty but engaging member of the I. W. W., who had been thrown off the Kansas City local a few miles north of Leavenworth. James saw the camp fire from the road, made for it and was invited to dinner.

He stayed until after ten, arguing the merits and demerits of the capitalistic system. He had a glorious time. So did his host. By the time James had drunk his full share of the quart bottle he had pledged himself solemnly to a war of extermination of the capitalistic class.

Shooting was too good for them. He'd begin in the morning. And he knew just who he'd begin with. But first he had a little matter to settle which could not be put off any longer. If his friend, his dear friend Bill, would look him up in the morning.

James heaved himself unsteadily to his legs, wrung the hand of his new-found comrade and started northward. The first mile or two he sang, he danced, he capered. Afraid of Jane? Afraid of the Northrups? He laughed long and loud. He hadn't been afraid of the Germans, had he? He hadn't been afraid to tackle a nest of machine guns? Well, yes, he had. He had been damned afraid. He'd even been sick at his stomach.

But he'd kept on going, hadn't he? Just as he'd kept on going now until he'd had it out with Mrs. James Stimson and told her a thing or two that needed telling. One thing was that her paunchy nitwitted old bore of a father should never step foot over their threshold. The damned old capitalist! His friend Bill was right.

By the time James came to Commercial street his head was a little clearer. He was not anxious now to face Jane and have it out with her. Jane had a nasty way of getting under his hide and putting him in the wrong, no matter how guiltless his actions, how virtuous his motives.

It would be like her now to say that he was drunk. He had never been so sober in his life. Let her say what she liked; he wouldn't listen. After she had finished he would have his turn. He kept doggedly on.

When he came to the house at Oak and Fifth streets he saw that the lights were on. Crossing the lawn cautiously James peeked under a blind. Jane and her father were in the back parlor. Mr. Northrup was asleep in his chair. Jane was sitting bolt upright with a red spot on either cheek. She looked as if she had been crying.

But he'd bet his Sam Browne belt against the chances of the Germans at the peace conference that Jane wouldn't do any crying when she saw him. She'd be too busy flaying him alive. James pulled his cap down over one eye at a jaunty angle, straightened his tie and marched manfully up the front steps.

Step by step he felt his courage oozing down his spine, down his legs, out of his lagging toes. But it was too late now. They must have heard him. He gulped and opened the front door.

Jane stood in the archway between the hall and the front parlor. James closed the door behind him and took off his cap. One glance at Jane's angry contemptuous face, at her tightly compressed lips and James' eyes fell.

Mr. Northrup stirred in the next room. James looked this way and that, anywhere but at Jane. He found himself glaring at the infor-ensive tables and chairs, glaring at the walls.

There was a large photograph of Jane on the mantel. It seemed to James that those pictured eyes were looking down at him and sneering . . . as Jane was now sneering. Those eyes said to him that he was a coward and a failure. They knew that he could talk big to a drunken tramp, could talk big to himself. But talk was cheap.

"Where have you been?" Jane spat at him.

"Nowhere. Just walking around." "I don't believe you. Why, you've been drinking. You're drunk. You loathsome, disgusting beast! On your first night . . . after two years . . . you leave me here, frantic with anxiety, and go off and get drunk! You dare to come home drunk?"

She beat her hands together frantically. Mr. Northrup appeared behind her blinking sleepily. His hair was rumpled, his tie askew. When he caught sight of James he was suddenly awake.

"You," he said, "you . . . contemptible good-for-nothing. Drunk! You ought to be horsewhipped, yes, horsewhipped. If it were not for the scandal, I would do it myself."

"You had better go home, father dear," Jane said evenly. "I can deal with James drunk or sober. I have a few things to say to him that I'd rather say to him alone." She smiled, an ugly thin-lipped smile.

There was anticipation in this smile and . . . and pleasure. It would be a pleasure to Jane to goad and sting him. Horror of Jane, horror and loathing engulfed him. He stared at her a long moment. Why, he wasn't afraid of Jane. By God's mercy he wasn't the least afraid of her. James abruptly laughed loud and long.

"It may seem funny to you," Jane said, thrusting her face close to his across the table, "but I confess I fail to see anything funny in a drunken lout coming home to his wife, horrible, filthy . . . God, if you could see yourself!"

James stopped laughing as suddenly as he began. He leaned even closer to Jane, his hands on the table. "It isn't funny," he said soberly. "I only laughed to keep from crying. We ought to be crying, both of us. It's a mercy that you ought to thank God for on your knees that you cannot see yourself . . . as I see you . . . as you are."

Mr. Northrup, who had been fairly dancing up and down in impatience, broke in. "You'll hear from me in the morning, young man. Yes, you'll hear from me. If you say a word more to my daughter in your present obscene condition I warn you that . . ."

"Shut up. Another bleat from you and I'll throw you out of that door. Just you open your pig sty of a mouth again . . ."

Mr. Northrup had already opened his mouth. He closed it hastily. James turned to Jane.

"May I ask you one question before I go? It's a question that's haunted me for a long time."

Jane, clinging to her father, nodded but did not speak. James asked, "Did you love me when you married me?"

Jane amazingly shook off her father's restraining arm and came forward, came around the table. "Of course I loved you, my dear. Of course I loved you," she said and put a timid hand on James' shoulder.

"But I never loved you, so I am the one most to blame. Forgive me. And forget me. Goodbye." (Copyright, '35, Mateel H. Farnham)

Monday, James goes home again.

Doctor's Arrest Just What They Expected

Mechanics Grove, April 20 (AP).—The "haunted house" of the Susquehanna river hills has come to the very end villagers predicted for it.

That's why they seldom looked up from their plowing, though police cars roared up to the ramshackle farm of Dr. H. E. Zimmerly and reporters and cameramen phoned frantically from the cross roads grocery store.

Lifelong residents of Mechanics Grove shrugged or shook their heads after state police and county detectives broke into the house the other day and arrested the village doctor. They were not surprised, they said, when a young girl was carried from the house to an ambulance.

Show Little Interest

They showed little interest in the charges that Doctor Zimmerly performed illegal operations and that he had violated the narcotic laws. They pointed to the high board fence he erected on one end of his lot, so high that it shut off the view of the second-story windows of his neighbor's dwelling.

They've wondered about the Zimmerly house, they said, though few had made to say regarding their strange neighbor. There were some who recalled that "he treated the poor and never took pay from them." But others insisted the house is "haunted," and whispered about cries they've heard in the night, and dim lights burning "at all hours."

Remember His History

They said Doctor Zimmerly had come there "over fifteen years ago." They remembered the day his wife left him, with their daughter. They remembered, too, how he built a large tile garage in front of his property and planned to operate a

SEEK TO CONNECT NEGRO IN SECOND MURDER CASE

Richmond, Va., April 20 (AP).—Pictures and a detailed description of Joe Jackson, Negro, now in Henrico county jail under indictment for the murder of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Coleman, of Spotsylvania county, have been forwarded to Commonwealth's attorney John Galleher, of Leesburg, on the theory the prisoner might be the "Jackson" named by George Crawford, now serving a life sentence, as the murderer of Mrs. Agnes Hilsley and Mrs. Mary Buckner at Middleburg in 1933.

Should Loudon county residents suspect Jackson might be the man named, Mr. Galleher said Friday night he would ask Major Rice M. Youell, penitentiary superintendent, to let Crawford look at Jackson.

In his confession Crawford insisted a negro he knew only as "Jackson" actually killed the two women. Largely on this point, the jury in the celebrated case gave Crawford life imprisonment instead of the death sentence.

MISSING GIRL HAPPY

Buffalo, April 20 (AP).—Miss Billadean Curtis, Brooklyn stenographer, who disappeared Wednesday after the death of a pet dog, wants her friends to know she is happy at the home of a Buffalo friend.

She denied she fled from her apartment clad only in pajamas and a fur coat. She was amused, too, that the New York police should have hunted for her, she said Friday.

Attractive at 25, Miss Curtis rushed to her friend, Mrs. William Bibby, when she felt she had to leave home after an automobile killed Pepper Boy Chang III, the dog.

Demands for independence have grown there recently as the result of legislative dissatisfaction with the administration of federal relief funds there, and a legislative strike called last week in opposition to federal objection to a bill designed to great insular supremacy in disbursement of relief funds.

Electrochef

The modern way to cook

the really modern electric range, has taken electric cooking out of the luxury class. This new, full-flavored cooking is available for every home. Electrochef is FAST! You just turn the switch and start to cook! A flood of radiant heat—as clean as sunlight—is focused directly on the utensil. No fire or flame; no smoke or fumes; no sooty pots or pans. No matches in the kitchen! Approved by the Good Housekeeping Institute and the Delineator Home Institute. Glistening Porcelain enamel, chromium-plated bright parts, and rounded-corner design make Electrochef a joy to keep clean.

The ventless, self-basting oven seals in all the savory juices, and keeps the kitchen free from steam and vapors.

The oven has one element—you bake and roast above, and broil below.

And the beauty of it is that Electrochef cooking costs little if any more than the old-fashioned kind. A demonstration at our showroom will prove it!

An Evening Thought

SAVIOR SUPREME

The Son of God rode into town
A cheering crowd around him;
Men waving palms, men warbling
psalms,
A happy throng surround him.
In tears, in triumph, silent, strong Radiantly he rode along.
Jerusalem thus found him.

The Son of Man walked out of town
A jeering crowd around him;
Men haunting him, men taunting
him,
A howling throng surround him.
In trust, in triumph, silent, strong Radiantly he walked along.
And Calvary thus found him.

Jerusalem and Calvary,
Still seeing his supremacy,
In royal robes have bowed him.

With Us Daily

In the end of the Sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre.

And, behold, there was a great earthquake: for the angel of the Lord descended from Heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it.
His countenance was like lightning, and his raiment white as snow;

And for fear of him the keepers did shake, and became as dead men.
And the angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek Jesus which was crucified.

He is not here; for He is risen,
as He said, come and see the place where the Lord lay.

And go quickly, and tell his disciples that He is risen from the dead; and, behold, he goeth before you into Galilee; there shall ye see him: lo, I have told you.

And they departed quickly from the sepulchre with fear and great joy; and did run to bring his disciples word.

And as they went to tell his disciples, behold, Jesus met them, saying, All hail. And they came and held Him by the feet, and worshipped Him.

Then said Jesus unto them, Be not afraid; go tell my brethren that they go into Galilee, and there shall they see me.—St. Matthew 28:1-10.

Today's Talk

By George Mathew Adams
THIS EATING BUSINESS

THE compiler of a book recently wrote me for the menu of my favorite breakfast and dinner. I felt quite stumped! I, who am such a spare, unorthodox eater, as I might say. I'll wager that my reply gave the compiler a quaint smile.

I can recall when food was quite a problem with me. It didn't matter much about the menu, just so long as it was something to eat! But now the simpler the menu the better. The great joy in eating comes with the occasion. If I eat alone, I select few things and get it over with as soon as possible—eating to live, you see. But, if I have a friend with me, I make the meal an event—and put a great deal of devotion into it.

I love quaint, small, out-of-the-way places in which to eat. I like the old taverns and inns. I have the happiest of memories clustered about the meals eaten at the table of the old farmer and his good wife. In the city where I live, however, I have at least one place where I walk out of my way to eat. There are to be found congenial souls at almost any time.
There gather many of the great of this earth—artists, writers, business leaders, and people who love the plain things of life.

This eating place is as unpretentious and simple as a place could be.
Nothing fancy at all. From the plain tables and clean cloths we see the host and his smiling wife prepare the food in a great stove almost before our eyes. At a great round table, right next to the stove and where the rest of the food is prepared, sit a group of noted and un-noted folks who solve the problems of the world! (It would do a few congressmen and senators good to eat here, frequently.)

I dislike hotels or prominent eating places. Whenever I visit such cities as New Orleans, San Antonio, San Francisco, Toronto, Charleston, South Carolina, Chicago, or Los Angeles, I have my favorite eating places where I must be appeased with some friend. I cannot eat alone and be happy.

This eating business should be a process by which, not alone the body is renewed and given strength, but the mind broadened and enlarged, and the human spirit awakened!

77 CONVICT AGITATORS
PLACED IN SOLITARY

Columbus, Ohio, April 20 (AP).—

Warden J. C. Woodard sent to the London prison farm Friday 77 convict agitators who staged a two-day strike at the Ohio penitentiary this week.

The men will be placed in solitary confinement. Similar action was taken in 1930 after the Easter Monday prison fire in which 320 convicts perished.

The convicts have been in solitary at the prison since Woodard broke the strike of 1,056 convict workers Wednesday by serving them with notice to go back to work "or else."
Approximately 90 of the strikers refused to return to work and were given short rations and placed in solitary.

MOONEY DENIED
FREEDOM PLEA

Another Move by Preparedness-day Lifer Lost;
Judge Says "Denied."

San Rafael, Cal., April 20 (AP).— Tom Mooney's latest freedom move met with initial defeat here Friday when he was denied a writ of habeas corpus by Superior Judge Edward I. Butler, of Marin county.

Judge Butler simply wrote "denied" at the bottom of the petition filed in Mooney's behalf several days ago by his San Francisco attorney.

The jurist, whose court is located just a few miles from San Quentin prison, where Mooney is serving a life sentence for the San Francisco Preparedness day bombing in 1916, declined to comment.

Paves Way for Appeal

His denial of the writ paved the way for Mooney's counsel to carry the petition to the state district court of appeals and then, if necessary, to the state supreme court.

George T. Davis, attorney who filed the petition, intimated at the time that the fight would be carried through the state courts as suggested by the United States supreme court last January.

Suggested by Supreme Court

The high tribunal, while refusing to consider a habeas corpus petition before it, advised the now elderly convict that he must first exhaust all means of relief provided by the state.

In his petition Mooney alleged that he was convicted through perjured testimony and is being held in prison in violation of his rights under the United States constitution.

G. E. PURCHASES
DURANT MOTORS

Move Is Made to Expand Future Production of Oldsmobile Motor Cars.

Purchase by General Motors of the manufacturing plants of the former Durant motors corporation to be used to expand the future production facilities of Oldsmobile was announced today by C. L. Mc-Cuen, president of the Olds Motor Works, Lansing, Michigan.

The property purchased is located near the Oldsmobile factories in Lansing on a 48-acre industrial site.
The production facilities of Oldsmobile will be expanded to include an area of more than 960,000 square feet in four large modern automobile manufacturing buildings and several smaller buildings.

These modern factories were constructed to house the manufacturing and assembly of Star and Durant automobiles. More than 40,000 automobiles were built in one year in these new Oldsmobile factories although the plants were at no time operated at capacity. Since the Durant organization ceased operations, the new plant, built for their production, has been used only temporarily and in part by several manufacturing organizations allied with the automotive industry. The buildings are considered throughout the automotive industry as being models of modern plant design and construction. Immediate possession of the new property will be taken.

In expanding Oldsmobile's capacity, the production activities of the Lansing division of Fisher Body, which are devoted exclusively to the manufacture of Oldsmobile bodies, will be moved to the newly-acquired buildings.

Bream and Plank are local Oldsmobile distributors.

FRENCH INCREASE PERIOD
OF NAVAL ENLISTMENTS

Paris, April 20 (AP).—The ministry of marine decided Friday to increase the enlistment period in the navy from 24 to 30 months.

The measure parallels the action taken by the army recently. There will be an intermediate stage for those due to leave the service July 1. They will be compelled to serve only 27 months. Later classes will serve the full two and a half years.

Although service in the navy is not by conscription, those who are called on to serve in the army may elect sea service instead. Service in the fleet always has been longer than that in the army.

The only woman ever legally hanged in North Carolina was executed at Morgantown in 1833 for the murder of her husband.

OHIO PRISON
WARDEN QUILTS

Famed Penologist Is Cleared
Of Charges But Declines
To Continue.

Columbus, Ohio, April 20 (AP).— Amid a tempest of charges and counter-charges, Preston E. Thomas won momentary reinstatement Friday as warden of Ohio penitentiary.

The 64-year-old nationally known penologist then tendered his resignation, effective May 1, as head of the century old prison from which he was ousted three months ago by national guardsmen.

The reinstatement and Thomas' resignation halted his bitter fight to win reinstatement in an appeal from 17 charges filed against him with the state civil service commission.

Investigated Dozen Times

In his more than twenty-five years as a prison executive Thomas emerged victorious from a dozen previous investigations.

Mrs. Margaret Allman, state director of welfare, in accepting the resignation, announced that Thomas, who was suspended without pay January 26, would receive his full salary until May 1.

While controversy over the war-dship was being ironed out seventy-seven leaders of a strike Monday and Tuesday in the prison workshops were transferred under heavy guard to the London prison farm.

All But 90 at Work

All but 90 of the 1,056 prisoners who refused to work Monday were on the job Thursday. Among the agitators not sent to London was Russell Clark, Dillinger mobster, who is serving a life sentence for slaying Allen County Sheriff Jess Sarber.

The reinstatement was as spontaneous as was the suspension and removal of Thomas by Gov. Martin L. Davey soon after the governor took office.

Paul Herbert, attorney for Thomas, said the warden would "take it easy" until he recovers fully from an illness which affected his heart.
Thomas plans then to "lecture and write for a while," Herbert said.

Says Agreement Suggested
"The case is closed as far as we are concerned," he added. "The agreement that was reached was one that we suggested six weeks ago.

AIDE SOUGHT IN THEFT;
CITY HAS SERIES OF THEM

Hudson, N. Y., April 20 (AP).—
Thomas L. Connors, chief of police, said Friday a warrant had been issued for the arrest of the missing city treasurer of Hudson, William Herbs.

The warrant was based on an information signed by Mayor Frank Wise charging that Herbs in 1932 appropriated $113.55 of the city's money to his own use.

Herbs was appointed to succeed
former City Treasurer Charles J.
West, who was sent to Clinton prison after discovery of a shortage of $256,000 in municipal accounts in 1931. In the same year Clyde Dewitt, of Hudson, the Columbia county treasurer, was sent to prison after discovery of a shortage of $87,000 in county funds.

Death Stills Fiddle and Bow
Of Famed 'Aunt' Betty Morris

Charlottesville, Va., April 20 (AP).— Death Thursday stilled forever
the fiddle and bow of "Aunt Betty" Morris, dean of Virginia folk musicians, had scraped her way to international renown and a White House concert.

Her death here at the age of 80 years followed an illness of two months, which had been brightened for her by messages from lovers of music throughout the United States and Europe. It also parted the musical team which she and her gray-haired brother, John Chisholm, had maintained for the greater part of their lives.

Powell Pays Tribute

John Powell, of Richmond, the Virginia composer who did much to acquaint the world of music with her art as a player of folk songs, Thursday night said "to all who know her, the news of Aunt Betty's passing will come with a sense of loss. For almost a century she had been an unfailing wellspring of steadfast courage and gaiety to everyone with whom she came in contact."

She started to play the homely folk tunes by ear on her violin when she was 4 years old and continued to do so until a stroke two months ago.

The skill with which she and her brother, John, played "Haste to the Wedding" and similar mountain ballads at the Charlottesville and White Top music festivals brought her an invitation last May to play before Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt and others at the White House.

Her large store of folk music songs had brought her much attention in the musical world in recent years. Cecil Sharpe, who is known for his research work in traditional melodies of England, visited her while on a trip to this country, and pronounced her son, "The Simple Playboy," one of the finest folk-songs in existence. This judgment later was upheld by such musicians as Mr. Powell and Percy Grainger.

LOST WOODCOCK APPLIES
AT BIRD SOCIETY OFFICES

New York, April 20 (AP).—As if guided by unerring instinct, a disabled woodcock, lost over New York's steel and concrete forests,
Friday flew plump against the window of the offices occupied by the National Association of Audubon societies.

Members of the bird societies' staff hurried out to pick the bird up from the roof where it had fallen and found it had been stunned, but suffered no ill effects from its crash.

Nothing so appropriate had ever happened before, they said. The woodcock's visit to New York in itself was unusual, members of the association's staff declared, because it was the first of its species seen in the city since 1927.

Just Folks

EDGAR A. GUEST

THE SINGLE ROSE

A rose from a woman's bouquet
Fell as she stepped from her car,
But not caring she hurried away,
For what's one when many there are?

On her arm there were twenty or more
So she left with no sign of regret.
That rose with the fragrance it bore
Was a thing not worth stooping to get.

But another who passed down the way Discovered the scorned rose and smiled.
It would gladden at least for a day
The life of her sick little child—

What a fortunate chance for that rose
To be dropped at the rich woman's door,
Now a greater delight it bestows
Than will ever the twenty or more.

The United States department of agriculture says the country's supply of feed grains in storage is the smallest in more than 50 years.

IN MEMORIAM
In sad but loving remembrance of my daughter, Naomi Grace Burner, who departed this life April 20, 1918.
Many years ago, dear daughter, You were called away,
Leaving me with an aching heart And thinking of you each day.

Nobly at her post she fell,
My child so kind and true,
Beloved by all her friends so well And kind to all she knew.

Oh God, what a weight of sorrow,
We the lonely ones must bear,
But God knew best
And he took her home to rest.

MRS. W. A. CRISWELL.

Amy Mollison's Car Kills Man

Bridlington, England, April 20 (AP)—An automobile driven by Mrs. Amy Johnson Mollison, the aviatrix, collided near here Friday with a motorcycle, killing a passenger on the motorcycle and critically injuring its driver.
The motorcycle was reported to have grazed another automobile just before the accident. Mrs. Mollison was taking her father, a resident here, for a drive.
Witnesses said she drove to the side of the road in an effort to avoid a crash and appeared about to faint when she saw the dead man lifted from the wreckage. Her husband, James A. Mollison, now is in New York.

HAWAIIAN SUGAR PLANTERS GRANTED TIME EXTENSION
Washington, April 20 (AP)—The Hawaiian sugar planters' association Friday was granted an additional sixty days by the District of Columbia court of appeals from a decision of the District of Columbia supreme court in which the association was denied an injunction against Secretary Wallace to prevent application of the Jones-Costigan sugar act to Hawaii.
Attorneys for the association filed the motion for extension Thursday. The motion was filed to protect the sugar association in case a recent sugar curtailment agreement worked out with Wallace fails to gain the approval of Comptroller General McCarl.

HOUSE PASSES SECURITY BILL

To Raise $2,783,200,000 for Aged, Jobless, Children and Mothers.

Washington, April 20 (AP)—The social security bill, designed eventually to levy upward of $2,783,200,000 in new taxes and in return give financial aid to the aged, jobless, children and mothers, was rammed through the House Friday by the over-powering Democratic majority.

The final roll call, 372 for and only 33 against, ended two days less than three months of rough and tumble dispute. Indications were that more word-battering was in store for the measure in the Senate.

As approved by the House, the bill embodied everything outlined in the President's message January 17. At that time he suggested the "establishment of sound means toward a greater future economic security of the American people."

Afraid to Oppose it

Its passage was accompanied by laughter at the small number of opponents and a scattering applause. Many republicans, who had sought to strip the bill of its new taxes, were forced to prevent "political suicide," they said privately, to vote for the whole measure.

The Republicans, on one of their many motions, mustered 146 votes with some Democratic aid in an effort to increase from $15 to $20 a month the maximum Federal contribution for a needy old-age pension. Their motion also included the sections levying payroll and income taxes for future annuity payments to persons under 65 now working.

But most of the Democrats stayed in line, and smashed that motion under a 258 to 146 majority.

In the discard, for the rest of this Congress, administration leaders said, were such well-known old-age pension plans as the Townsend, Pope and Lundeen. The Townsend and Lundeen plans were rejected as amendments and supporters of the Pope plan decided not to offer it and take a licking.

Denver, April 20 (AP)—Mrs. Roswell Lavery was robbed while she prayed. As she knelt in a Denver church, the woman, wife of a drug company official, told police Friday, $11 was taken from her purse.

Contrary to common belief, foxes are not wanton destroyers of quail, game authorities have found.

Men at Airways' Island Depots Will Live in Rat-Proof Houses

Seattle, April 20 (AP)—Men at the island "depots" on the project commercial air route of Pan-American Airways to China will live in stilt-supported houses which make use of poison glue to kill rats, termites and wood borers.

The last man in at night will kick away a portable stair. The first man out in the morning will pull it back with a rope.

Bats on Wake Island have been reported so numerous that they are destroying each other.

Seattle plywood mills disclosed the construction plans today for the "knockdown" houses on Midway, Wake and Guam islands. The Yankee Clipper, Pan-American flying boat, landed at Honolulu, this week after a 2,400-mile non-stop flight from Alameda, blazing the trail for the new transpacific commercial route.

The project resulted in orders here for one million square feet of plywood, a million feet of additional lumber and creation of a pay roll for 200 men for more than two months.

Forty "knockdown" houses were built, six floats and two docks, to establish bases for the Yankee Clipper.

IN CASE OF WAR

North and South America agreed to a treaty in Washington which is designed to assure protection in event of a war to artistic, scientific and historic institutions and monuments in the two Americas. Postman Has to Ring Twice With Triplets' Easter Gifts

Somerset, Pa., April 20 (AP).—Easter cheer spread today to the little Belfried school house high up in the Allegheny mountains where the triplets—Joe, Jim and John—were born just a week ago to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kiser.

Hardly a day passes that the mailman fails to bring gifts to the once impoverished family that took refuge from the depression in the abandoned building two years ago.

Friday, there were so many Easter presents—colored eggs, bunnies and chicks—that the mailman had to make two trips over the rutty country road to the secluded one-room abode.

Except for a touch of jaundice which made Joe ill, the triplets are getting along fine. Dr. T. C. Lyon, describes them as "stout little fellows." Mrs. Kiser, who is 22, and the mother of another two-year-old child, was recovering after a relapse.

"Too much excitement," exclaimed the doctor.

Kiser, 23, "on relief" for some time, told relief investigators Friday people have been so generous since the babies were born he wants to be taken off the lists. The request was complied with. Young Kiser said he expects to land a regular job rather than go on relief again.

Sunshine has melted away all the snow that threatened to maroon the family in their home, miles off the beaten paths. Many visitors traveled over the narrow country road to their home, until Doctor Lyon put up a cardboard sign reading:

"No visitors allowed."

The doctor reported the babies were developing as well as could be expected and gaining weight. An

AMUSEMENTS

MAJESTIC
"Gold Diggers of 1935." First National's musical spectacle, plays at the Majestic theatre Monday and Tuesday.

The story of Robert Lord and Peter Milne is a comedy with three separate love tangles. There is a play within a play, a wealthy widow producing a milk fund show at a swanky summer hotel.

Dick Powell and Gloria Stuart have the romantic leads, with Frank McHugh and Dorothy Dare in a semi-comic love affair and Glenda Farrell taking an eccentric millionaire over the jumps. Alice Brady has the role of the rich widow who is bilked of a considerable fortune by a theatrical producer, a part played by Adolphe Menjou. Joseph Cawthon in the role of a scenic and costume artist and the hotel manager, Grant Mitchell.

Winifred Shaw, the former musical comedy stage star, sings in the show. Dick Powell also sings catchy airs which were written by the song team of Warren and Dubin.

Sanity Tests Put "Ghosts" On Trial, Psychiatrist Says

New York, April 20 (AP).—Anti-quoted rules for testing a defendant's legal sanity, Dr. William Alanson White, a noted psychiatrist, said Friday night, have made criminal court actions "the trial of a ghost that stalks across the stage in this dramatic procedure," instead of the trial of a human being.

Dr. White, superintendent of St. Elizabeth's hospital, of Washington, spoke before the New York Academy of Medicine.

Hits Hypothetical Question

The hypothetical question—frequently highly involved and technical—asked psychiatric experts in placing their opinions of the defendant's sanity into the record particularly was criticized by the physician, who said:

"The hypothetical question asks something about an individual who does not exist, never has existed, and from the constitution of most questions never could exist."

"It is in harmony with the entire criminal procedure, which does not try the defendant, but tries a hypothetical individual accused of something, the existence of which often is questionable except by definition."

"Trial of a Ghost"

"The trial that takes place in our criminal courts is not the trial of a man but the trial of a ghost that stalks across the stage in this dramatic procedure and that probably would be least recognized by the so-called criminal himself, while behind such indefinite terms as 'responsibility' there rides the same old motive of vengeance."

Psychiatry has branched into the field of criminology, said Dr. White, "where it meets with antiquated, outworn, archaic ways of thinking that have been crystallized in the statutory law and retain personal expression through the personalities of the lawyers who have been educated in the traditional legal methodology."

Making Impression

He said that despite this obstacle science is making an impression and that slowly law schools are responding to the pressure of a gradually evolving public opinion.

"The day seems to be coming," he continued, "when these conditions will be treated purely from the standpoint of what the best results are which can be hoped for and what are the best methods of obtaining them.... Such a viewpoint eliminates the idea of punishment as I believe it should."

Use of psychiatric principles should also be more extensive among physicians and educators, he said. If they were better informed on psychiatry their knowledge would be of great benefit to society, he added.
